

Students journey in space

Science Club rockets with first graders

By RENA UNGER

Science Club members had the opportunity to be astronauts for a fun evening, and help the first-graders learn more about space at the same time.

Club members first presented a demonstration on the different moon phases that occur throughout the year.

The elementary students participated very willingly throughout the presentation.

Next, the high school students shared a slide show of pictures of our galaxy, craters, and all other sorts of space phenomenon.

Afterward, the young astronauts went on a journey in a rocket ship, where they were able to take a spin through space.

through a telescope that night. Principal Duane Dorshorst presided as their captain and the Science Club members were on board as well. The students lay on the gym floor while Mr. Dorshorst showed pictures of outer space from a laptop computer. Star Night has become an annual event for Science Club members and the first-graders.

Audrey Pavlicek and Marty Olson are the first-grade teachers.

Junior High scholars compete in bowls

By KYM RICHARDS

The junior high scholar bowl team competed in their first scholar bowl at Atwood on Tuesday, Nov. 4.

The seventh-grade team consisted of Haley Barrett, Anna Marie Larue, Farra McChesney, and Alyssa Rippe.

The eighth-grade team consisted of Jessica Bremer, Rebecca Helm, Heather Glodt, and Melissa Hasty.

Winning in the seventh-grade division was Herndon, first; and Goodland, second. In the eighth-grade division, Goodland placed first, and Oakley placed second.

"This was the first meet for the seventh-graders, so they were very timid and shy to begin with, but by the end of the meet, they were more comfortable answering the questions," said Coach Marlene Moxter.

The seventh-grade team won one round, and the eighth grade team won two rounds.

On Nov. 10, the Junior High scholar bowl team traveled to Colby to compete. Teams there were Cheylin, Golden Plains, Hays-Kennedy, Oakley, Goodland, Atwood, Quinter, Scott City, and Colby.

Danyel Wolters, Taylor Young, Haley Barrett, and Ann Marie Larue made up the seventh-grade team. The team defeated Goodland, Scott City, and Golden Plains.

The eighth-grade team consisted of Lacey Ream, Rory Wendelin, Jessica Bremer, and Heather Glodt.

The eighth-grade team defeated Hoxie, Scott City, Goodland, Quinter, and Cheylin.

Dancing, games, food featured at class party

By KERRIE OLSON

Dancing, games, eating, and loads of fun—that's what the high school was all about Saturday night, Nov. 15.

The journalism class sponsored a dance to raise money for the yearbook.

On behalf of the entire journalism staff, we would like to thank Marvin Matchett and Jonathon Fick of Jam Session for their DJ services.

"They did an outstanding job," said yearbook editor Sarah Ruf. "We would also like to thank the student council for paying part of the cost."

The evening started off with swing dancing lessons given by Jim and Gina Andersen. Gina Montgomery also taught the students a country line dance.

Students who paid for the lessons had their names put in for a chance to win a free 2004 yearbook. The winners were Rebekah Hasty and Sarah Marcuson.

Also, those who wanted to competed in a swing dance contest. Kaitlyn Stapp and David Barth were the winners.

This dance was just one of the many fund-raisers the journalism class is doing to raise money for the 2004 yearbook.
