'Buffalo Bill' returns to Kansas

By TISHA COX Colby Free Press

In life, William F. "Buffalo Bill" Cody was recognized around the world. In death, he has become larger than life.

A monumental bronze statue to be erected in Oakley in May will commemorate the birthplace of the legend of "Buffalo Bill" Cody. Charlie Norton of Leoti was chosen by Lewis Evins, president of Farmers and Merchants Bank in Oakley, to do the statue. It features Mr. Cody running down a buffalo on his horse,

The statue's dedication is scheduled for 11 a.m. on Saturday, May 22, in Oakley. It will be accompanied by an exhibit of art by Norton and his wife, Pat, at the Fick Fossil Museum in Oakley.

Mr. Evins said the entire project, including purchasing land and the statue itself, cost about half a million dollars. Most of the money has come from donations, he said, and the bank contributed as well.

The one-and-a-half-times lifesized statue should be delivered by the first part of May.

Mr. Evins said the idea took root back in 1995 when he discovered that Cody's reputation as Buffalo Bill had started in Logan County.

In 1868, he said, Mr. Cody was working for the Kansas Pacific Railroad, building through this country toward Denver, as a buffalo hunter.

"I felt that made Logan County the birthplace of the legend of Buffalo Bill," Mr. Evins said.

In the spring of 1868, he said, Mr. Cody and another hunter named Bill Comstock had a contest to see who would take the title of "Buffalo Bill." Ten miles west of Oakley, the two men began shooting. The contest ended with Mr. Cody killing 69 bison to Mr. Comstock's 46.

Evins said after that day, Mr. Cody was known as Buffalo Bill.

He said he took a trip to the Buffalo Bill Cody Heritage Museum in Cody, Wyo., in 1995.
