Another round of rain yesterday kept Decatur County farmers out of the fields. Will we ever see a dry period? Today showers will be in Missouri and the SE US. Wednesday a dry cold front will swing through. Stiff winds will switch to the north behind the front and lows Thursday morning dip to the freezing mark. A second disturbance Friday may kick up light scattered showers, but after that chance, we should be dry through the weekend and first half of next week. www.decisionweather.com
