Keep cutting boards clean to kill germs

When chopping, cutting or slicing food, cooks should use a cutting board — not the counter top. Cutting boards can take the nicks and scratches, yet are soft enough not to damage a knife. Whether you use a plastic, acrylic or wood cutting board, wash it in hot, soapy water after each use and before going on to the next food. Another good idea is to always use one cutting board for meat, and a different one for cutting vegetables. If you have just one cutting board, make sure you cut vegetables first and then meat to avoid cross-contamination. Here are some additional hints:
 • Wash hands with warm, soapy water before and after food preparation and especially after preparing meat, poultry, eggs or seafood.
 • To sanitize cutting boards, use a chlorine bleach-water solution. The easiest way is to mix two teaspoons of household bleach in a quart of water. Keep the mixture in a spray bottle marked "bleach water." After spraying the cutting board, let it air dry.

 • If the cutting board moves around on the counter when you're chopping, place three or four thin rubber bands on a damp towel underneath it to keep it from slipping.
 • Help kids get in the habit of reaching for a cutting board each time they are chopping, dicing or cutting.
 • Consider using paper towels to clean up kitchen surfaces. If you use cloth towels, launder them often in hot, soapy water.

Corrections

The Police Blotter in the June 1 edition of The Oberlin Herald reported incorrectly that Canaan Bishop, 17, did not receive a ticket for a backing accident. Mr. Bishop did receive a ticket. The mistake was due to incorrect information given to the newspaper.
 An engagement announcement for Ashley Jeannae Tongish and Brittan James Houser of Newton in the June 8 issue of The Oberlin Herald reported incorrectly that the wedding would take place on Aug. 6 at Our Lady of Guadalupe Church in Wichita.

 The church is in Newton. A reception will follow at Tallgrass Country Club in Wichita. The mistake was due to incomplete information provided to the newspaper.

WEATHER

Decatur County Weather ----- June 14th - 18th

Tue	Wed	Thu	Fri	Sat
85/55	88/58	85/58	87/63	88/58

Normal High: 83
 Normal Low: 55
 Sunrise: 6:13 to 6:12am
 Sunset: 9:13 to 9:14pm

Temperatures will once again climb close to 90 degrees as we near the beginning of summer. This week also looks dry partially due to a surface ridge moving through the high plains which will completely keep out the rain today and tomorrow. But Wednesday and Thursday southerly winds will push the ridge out and bring in Gulf moisture allowing for some widely scattered storms. However this weekend which will be dry and warm. A good weekend to head to the lake.
