

WITH A MARKER in her hand, Kariah Castle (above) colored a bookmark the first day of FROGS camp. Caleb Koerperich (below left) ate his lunch in the park. The FROGS camp sign (below right)

Kids outdoor camp back for June, July

It's back!
The Fun Radical Outdoor Get-away Summer camp started Monday morning with 25 kids in City Park.

Pastor Heidi Wiebe said the Oberlin Covenant Church sponsors the FROGS camp, which runs through Friday, July 29, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. each Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

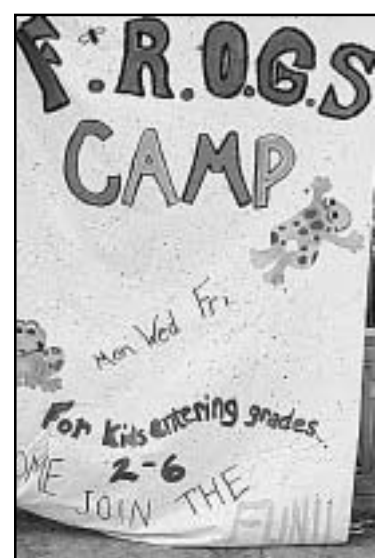

The camp is open to kids who have finished first grade through those who are going into sixth grade.

The Head Frog is Kacie Mulhern and the Assistant Frog is Anthony Marshall. Miss Mulhern is a college student in Washington State. This is her second year at the camp.

She said the kids play games, learn songs and do crafts.

Pastor Wiebe said a snack and water are provided for the kids, but they bring their own sack lunch which they eat in the park around 11:30 a.m.

She said the church felt that there wasn't a lot for the kids to do in the summer, and they wanted to provide a structured environment for them. They started the camp four years ago. The camp is free.

The kids don't have to attend the camp every day, Pastor Wiebe said, but they can if they want, or they can drop in any day that works.

MONDAY MORNING, Nicole Russ and Miki Dorshorst (above) sat in the shelter at City Park and waited to pick out the paint they would use on their bookmarks. Daisy Rhein (right) used a marker on hers.

