

Yearbook staff attends workshop

Nine yearbook staff members and their adviser, Brenda Breth, attended a yearbook workshop held at Colby Community College on Friday, Sept. 16.

The workshop was sponsored by Jostens, the company that publishes the Decatur Community High School yearbook. Organizers were Derrius Mammen, Oberlin's yearbook representative, and his associates.

During various sessions the staff learned about theme coverage, new trends in yearbooking, caption writing and photography. They also were able to view yearbooks from across the country to get ideas.

The Oberlin group won the theme competition during one of the sessions. They had to brainstorm a theme and decide how to carry it throughout the book.

Whitney Beinke was also recognized as one of the top caption writers at the workshop.

Attending the workshop were Whitney, Sharee Dempewolf, Marci Matchett, Sunnie Fredrickson, Kaitlyn Stapp, Courtney Gillespie, Teryn Grafel, Kellen Doeden and Jonathan Smith.

Magazine subscription sales, renewals kick off

By SCOTT MILLER
All students at Decatur Community High School are currently selling magazine subscriptions and renewals.

Magazine sales are the biggest fund-raiser the Student Council does all year, and an easy way to collect money for the school.

The magazine sale campaign offers lots of prizes to those who participate. For example, the highest seller in the area has a chance to win $300. There is also the "sucker drawing." If a student sells a certain number of magazines, he or she gets to choose a sucker with a number on the bottom of it. The student will win money based on that number.

The Student Council uses the money to help pay for their annual spring trip to Washington, D.C., to buy certain items for the school such as the new TV in the cafeteria, and to support activities within the school, such as the yearbook.
