Ron Temple had triple bypass surgery on Dec. 7, in Lincoln, Neb., and is doing well. He hopes to be home soon. Mail will reach him at Bryan LGH Medical Center East, 1600 S. 48th St., Lincoln, Neb., 8506, or at his home, RR1, Box 25,, Norcatur, Kan., 67653.

Ron Montgomery was able to return home from the hospital in Kearney, Neb., on Dec. 4 after several surgeries following a farm accident.

Birthdays and anniversaries: Mindy Braun - Dec. 12; Heather Baker - Dec. 14; Bryndon Wentz; Justine Tuttle, John and Carol New - Dec. 17.

Senior Citizens plan to meet, weather permitting, at 1:30 p.m. on Friday for cards.

Ahog roast benefit for Ron Montgomery has been tentatively set for Saturday, Jan. 12, 5 to 7:30 p.m., at the Norcatur City Building. All proceeds will go to help Ron with medical expenses incurred after a farm accident. If you would like to make a salad or dessert, please contact Chris Dempewolf.

The Norcatur City Office and Norcatur Library will be closed from Dec. 24 to Jan. 1.

Veda Woods attended the Lyle Church Community Dinner and Bible study on Dec. 3. On Tuesday, she helped with the Norcatur News, and Carol Moye came to visit. Toots Magers and Veda went to Oberlin Joe. They also enjoyed a tour of St. on Thursday, Dec. 6, to hear Vic Joe before returning home. Aaron Mowry's old-time music at Cedar also plans to spend Christmas with Living Center.

The Mike Helm family enjoyed having Aaron home from West Point for Thanksgiving. They spent Thanksgiving with Helen Helm at Heritage Plaza in Cambridge and were joined by John Helm of Seattle, Wash.; the Jim Helm and Kathy Brashears families, and Ceanne and Marty Rinehart.

On Friday, Aaron and Becky spent the day in Danbury with Grandma and Grandpa Fossum and also put up posters for the Lebanon Legion pancake supper. Mike, Becky and Jacob took Aaron to the airport at Kansas City and were accompanied by Laurie Helm of St.

Good Samaritan News

It seems that Christmas is synonymous with family and celebrations. It has been that way since the very first Christmas when God sent Jesus, Immanuel, as a baby to be born to a young virgin mother and carpenter step-father.

Shepherds and wise men were the first to celebrate His birth. More than 2,000 years later families still gather to worship the tiny King, as we did on Friday evening.

For our residents, family becomes more and more important as years go by. They understand that all the gifts and possessions we spend our life accumulating hold no lasting value. In fact, most have now been left behind. Family is what brings them fulfillment and joy, and yet they have already said good-bye to many of their loved ones who have gone before them.

The reality of Christmas takes on deeper meaning. They understand more clearly that the only gift that has eternal significance is the One that was wrapped in swaddling clothes. They know that when they received that gift, they were grafted into a forever family that will never Leroy and Sharon Stevenson were our distinguished guests providing the entertainment. He recited several readings and led us in singing carols. His wife then joined him to sing a duet at the conclusion of the program.

On Wednesday morning, party favors were made for our family dinner. Then in the early afternoon, Kelley Black and Linda Hollowell helped Angel Lane ladies Hazel Flaska and Faye Miller make treats for Thursday's Neighborhood Christmas Party. Everyone was invited to Angel Lane, where tables were overflowing with treats made by staff and residents. The staff donned Santa hats and reindeer antlers and sang some carols. It was just plain ol' fun!

That night the 180 House boys came to visit and we get together and talked. It is so interesting to get different perspectives on life issues. The residents always look forward to this time with the boys. # Use these for healthy holiday

If you will be attending a lot of holiday parties this year, you may be wondering if there are any ideas to help avoid gaining weight.

First, count yourself lucky if you haven't already started inching up on the scale. For a lot of people these days, "the holidays" stretch from Halloween all the way to the Super Bowl – a full 10 weeks of indulging.

According to the New England Journal of Medicine, the average weight gain over the holidays tends to be less than two pounds, but people who are already overweight are likely to gain more. And it can be difficult to shed those pounds once they're established.

So, it's a good idea to plan ahead and take steps to prevent gaining weight in the first place.

Here are a dozen ideas, for parties and other holiday indulgences:

- Don't starve yourself the day of a party. Rather, eat light but regular meals. That will keep your metabolism charged up.
- An hour or two before a party, eat a high-fiber snack. It will help you feel full and allow you to make better choices.
- When at a party, always use a plate or napkin for appetizers. It helps you quantify what you're
- If appetizers have toothpicks, hold on to your used toothpicks. That lets you keep track of how many appetizers you've eaten.
- Use a smaller plate, if available, to put your food on. That helps with portion control.
- If attending an open house or other event for which you don't have to arrive at a set time, plan to arrive

- Attending a potluck? Bring something healthful – a vegetable or fruit tray with low-fat dip, for example.
- · After eating, find a place away from the food table to situate yourself, or offer to help with hosting duties to allow you to focus on something other than food.
- Drink enough fluid. Sometimes people mistake hunger for thirst. Between meals, have a glass of water before reaching for some-

- Get enough rest. Feeling tired
- can make it easy to overeat. • Baking holiday cookies? Make them smaller – bite size. And store them in the freezer or in a container high in a cupboard.
- Keep a bowl of fruit on the counter and fresh vegetables at eye-level in the refrigerator to make it easy to

It's time to reflect on Christmas By Pastor Doug Mason, Lund Covenant Church

It's less than a week now until Christmas day. Are you ready?

Is your shopping done or are you more the lastminute type? Where is your focus? Is it on Christmas gifts? Are you in a panic over what's not done? Are you exhausted from all the holiday activities? Are you excited about what's waiting for you under the tree?

Well, let me suggest that we take some time together and refocus. Take a deep breath in, exhale

Christmas is about giving recognition to God coming to Earth 2,000 years ago in the form of a little baby. Recently in Teens For Christ, I had a couple of the teens read and act out a little skit that, while silly, really helped put Christmas in perspective.

The skit was about two teenage girls in Bethlehem of the girls was his babysitter and she was trying to to earth. think of something to do for his birthday. The girl's friend was suggesting ideas. The first thought was, "Let's cut down a tree, drag it inside and hang things on it."

Next she thought she ought to bring her uncle to the party who has a white beard, a big belly and a red birthday? suit to say, "Ho, ho, ho."

The girl's next idea was to eat so much candy and cookies that they make themselves sick.

She also suggested, "We could hang up leaves and berries, and whoever stands under them has to kiss somebody.'

She then suggested singing songs about snow and then her top idea – give presents to each other to celebrate His birthday.

How silly that all sounded, didn't it? And yet that sounds very much like our Christmas celebrations. I followed the skit with some questions for the teens to ponder. The most obvious question was, "How could our group celebrate Jesus' birth without using a tree, presents, refreshments and other such things?"

For the moment, set aside all our modern Christmas when Jesus' first birthday was about to arrive. One customs and think only of the fact that Jesus came

Why did He come?

What do you think motivated God to send His

What does that mean to you personally?

What would Jesus want us to do to celebrate His
