Student has attended Oberlin schools since beginning pre-school

By KAITLYN GILLESPIE
Chantelle Beneda is the daughter of Terese and Greg Vontz and Ron Beneda. She has been attending Oberlin schools since pre-school.

Chantelle's favorite part of school is 3:29 p.m. Her least favorite part is the immaturity of some of the underclassmen. Her favorite class is plant science because she gets to be with one of her best friends.

When asked what her advice to underclassmen, she said, "My advice to them is that they grow up. Life isn't all about "he said" "she said."

Chantelle is in the service group

Kayettes. Her favorite teachers are Mrs. Breth and Mrs. Arp.

Her future plans are to either go to Colby Community College or McCook Community College and study business.

When Chantelle was little, she wanted to be a forensic scientist. Her hobbies are being with her son, Peyton Grant, and watching him grow.

Chantelle says that the thing she thinks is different about DCHS from when she was a freshman is the gazebo. "There is a gazebo in the middle of the square, and nobody gets to use it."

Penny War to raise funds for yearbook

By ANDY DEMPEWOLF

The yearbook staff is busy at work trying to raise enough money for this year's all-color yearbook. Their latest venture is a Penny War.

The war will take place during the weeks of January 28 to Feb. 8.

All seventh through 12th grades are encouraged to participate.

How it works-

Culligans has donated waters jugs for each class to put its money in. Pennies count toward the class totals, but paper money, quarters, dimes, and nickels count against the class totals. If you want the other class to lose, add these to their jugs.

The winning class will get half of the money in its jug. The rest will be donated to the journalism department for the 2008 yearbook.
