Driver keeps winning

Hometown favorite David Murray continued his winning ways last Monday at the Oberlin Speedway in a night filled with fun and racing dignitaries.

It was the fourth night of a five-night swing through Kansas and Nebraska for The Blood, Sweat, and Tears IMCA modified series.

Racing dignitaries watching the races and helping out included former NASCAR Cup driver Randy LaJoie, who gave safety tips to the drivers, and race chaser and author Allen Brown of Michigan.

At the end of the night, Murray and Dalton Dolan of Oberlin, Travis Sherfick of WaKeeney, Kelly Karnopp of Norton and Max Pollmann of Trenton, Neb., were the winners of the A features.

Murray had won the previous two A features this year in Oberlin and had won each of the three previous nights of the tour. He won his 400th career IMCA modified win on Friday at Jetmore and then again on Saturday in Dodge City and on Sunday in Colby.

Despite starting in row four of last Monday's main event, heat-race Victor Murray found his way to the lead on lap two, and continued his win streak. The pursuit for which was slowed by five caution periods during the 25-lap race, primarily one car problems.

Heat race winner Matt Fabrizius, WaKeeney, enjoyed the second spot for many laps, but faded with seven to go. Grant Junghans, Manhattan, was one of the drivers to get by Fabrizius, and never fell out of the top four during the race.

Heat-race winner Will Brack, Mead, Colo., started in 12th and slowly worked his way through the field, passing Junghans for second in the last half of the race. When he got there, Murray had already checked out to a huge lead.

Junghans was followed at the finish line by Delbert Smith, Wichita, the fourth heat winner of the class. Ronnie Wallace, McCook, started at the rear of the field after a flat on the opening lap, but worked his way to fifth, battled Smith for fourth, and dropped out after contact caused yet another flat with a couple of laps to go. Jerry Teel, Hays, took fifth.

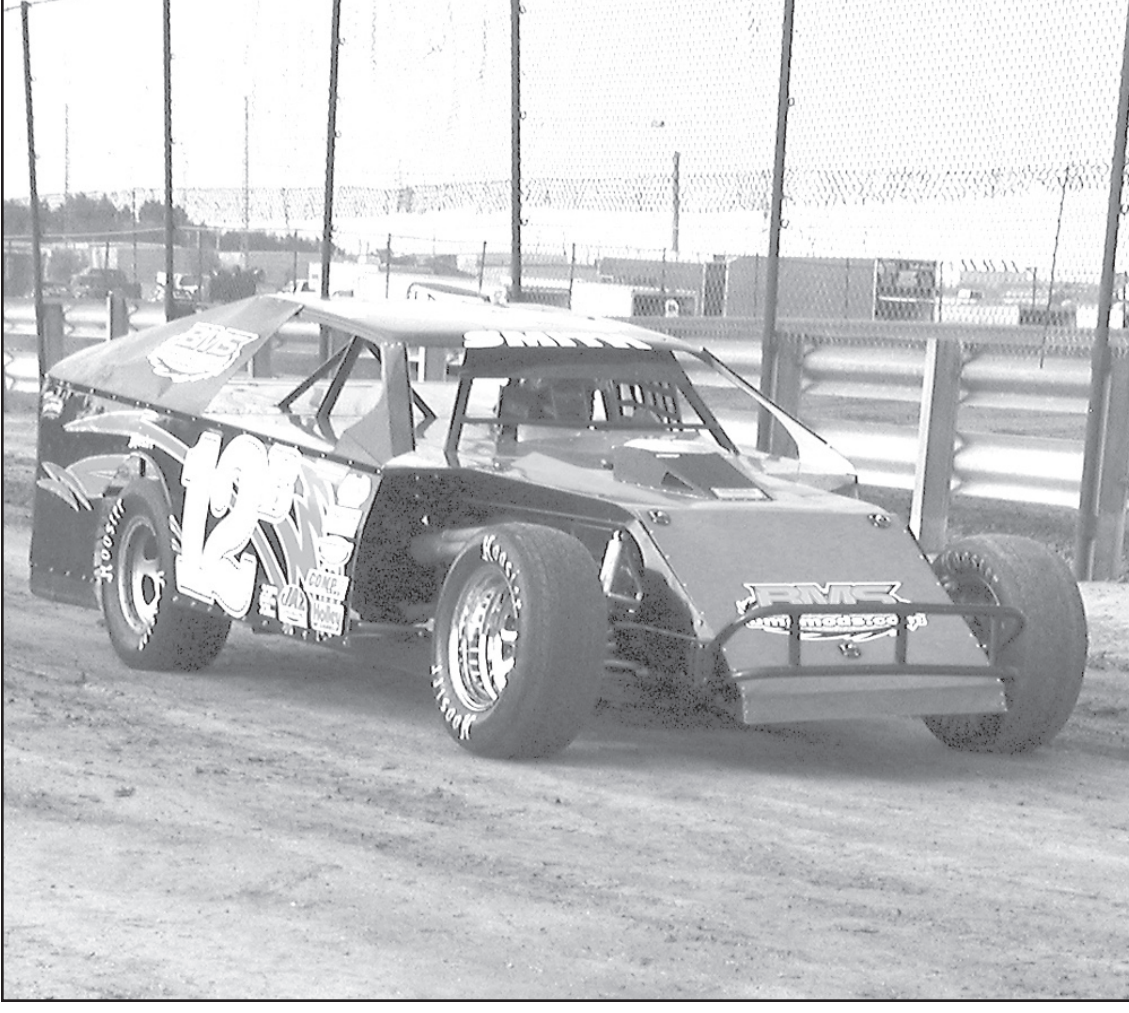

Terry Sherfick took the heat race and A feature wins in the IMCA stock car class.

The WaKeeney driver found his way by Jason Rogers of Selden early in the feature, and never looked back.

Josh Hudson of Kensington managed to reel him in on the last lap, but appeared to need a few more laps to mount a serious challenge. Ryan Wark, Rexford, was third, while Lenora's Jay Hachmeister finished fourth. Rogers rounded out the top five.

The IMCA hobby stock class found itself a little thin again.

Kelly Karnopp came ready to take on all challengers. Mechanical issues forced him out of the feature on June 7, but the Norton driver had no issues with the car, winning both the heat race and A feature. Jason McIntyre of Colby finished second
