Corrections

An article in the Wednesday, June 25, edition of The Oberlin Herald reported incorrectly that the Oberlin Country Club had $10,000 left at the end of last year. The group actually had a deficit of more than $10,000, which was paid off through donations and membership fees. This was the reporter's error.

An item in the Jennings News in the June 25 issue about a meeting scheduled at the ambulance barn on Thursday was sent with only initials for the name of the group. The proofreader looked up the initials on the Internet, however, that was not the correct name of the group. It should have been Historic Building Preservation Committee. This was a proofing error.

An article in the Wednesday, June 18, edition reported incorrectly that an Auto Pulse machine the ambulance department wanted was used to check vital signs. It actually does chest compressions for cardiopulmonary resuscitation. This was a reporter's error.

In the May 28, June 4, 11, 18, and 25 issues, the cost for milo in the weekly Markets should have been bushels, not hundredweight. Future issues will be by the hundredweight for milo only. This was a proofreading error.

The Oberlin Herald will correct or clarify any mistake or misunderstanding in a news story. Please call our office at 475-2206 to report errors. We believe that news stories should be fair and factual, and appreciate your calling to our attention any failure to live up to this standard.
