Nebraska golf pro helps junior golfers master basics

By KIMBERLY DAVIS

Since the beginning of June, several junior golfers, under the guidance of a Nebraska golf pro, have been learning about the sport at the Oberlin Country Club.

Carol Brown, who organizes the group, said this is the second year she's worked with the youngsters over the summer. Brian Simons-son used to come work with the golfers, she said, but wasn't able to this year.

Mrs. Brown said she decided to stop at Cross Creek Golf Course in Cambridge one time when she was passing through to see if the golf pro would consider coming to Oberlin.

Now Sean Rielly travels to Oberlin every Wednesday to work with the junior golfers.

This is the second year the group of 24 junior golfers ages 8 to 17 has had a golf pro helping out.

Mrs. Brown said the group started the first week of June with four beginners and 20 returning golfers.

The group is part of the Northwest Kansas Junior Golf League, which includes Colby, Hoxie, St. Francis, Atwood, Goodland and Oakley.

The group just had its tournament here a week ago and was to play in St. Francis on Monday.

If the golfers receive medals in any tournaments then they have a chance to go to the northwest Kansas championship in Goodland on Monday. At that tournament the junior golfers from the east and west will meet.

The members practice every Wednesday in the summer. Part of joining the team includes purchasing a membership to the golf course, so the kids can play when they want to, Mrs. Brown said.

Last Wednesday Rielly worked with the golfers on controlling shots, the greens, hand placement and putting.

He asked the golfers to fill in the statement "a good putter is never afraid of ____."

The kids agreed a good putter is never afraid of missing the shot. That's right, said Mr. Rielly, because a good putter knows they will make it on the second shot.

Last Wednesday there were 12 golfers ready to learn. They were broken down into two groups. After working with the pro, the first group of eight headed for the course and Rielly moved on to the second group of four.

As the boys walked off the course, Mrs. Brown commented that this is the future generation of golfers.

Race crowds hurt by harvest

Since the beginning of the weekend, the car and crowd count was down Sunday night at the Oberlin Speedway.

Still the races were enjoyed by those able to attend and Jason Schoenberger of Gorham, Kelly Karnopp of Norton, Max Pollmann of Trenton, Neb., and Mitch Hamilton of McCook took the A feature wins.

The modified division looked a little different as the three stock cars were added to the field.

Stock Car driver Josh Hudson of Kensington jumped out with the early lead, but could not stop modified driver John Huffman of McCook from taking the high line and zooming out to the lead.

Heat winner Jason Schoenberger got by Hudson soon after and tracked down the Nebraska driver. On lap seven, Schoenberger found this way around and drove off with the win. Beau Speicher of Denver started in the back of the field and got by Huffman with two laps to go for second place. Milo Lippleman of Oberlin ran steady to bring his modified home in fourth ahead of stock car driver Cory Struckhoff of Kensington.

Even though Kelly Karnopp's family duties prevented him from changing gears in his hobby stock, it did not stop him from a good run. Jason McIntyre of Colby had a rough heat race, but enjoyed showing the way for the first half of the hobby stock A feature.

high line worked for him, took the lead on lap six from "Shrek," as the Colby man is called, and never looked back. McIntyre was satisfied with second, which wasn't bad considering the time he spent over the weekend repairing the car from a wreck Friday night at Culbertson, Neb.

Newcomer Bret Conness of Wakeney beat 15 year-old Matthew Crowell for fourth. Norman Wiechman of Scott City brought his AMC Javelin to the track too late for the heat races, but lined up in time for the main event and took home fifth.

Heat winner Billy Aeby of Imperial, Neb., and Rick Touslee of Oberlin were the top two drivers early on in the classic modified A feature.

Max Pollmann, who was three-for-three in A feature wins at the Oberlin Speedway this year, had to make a daring double-play pass on the duo to take the lead on lap four. Touslee also got by Aeby, but for the fourth time this year, followed Pollmann to the line for second. Aeby took third, ahead of Alex Pollmann and Loren Pollmann, both of Trenton, Neb.

Mitch Hamilton gained his first Kansas mini-truck A feature win. After winning the heat race, Hamilton again moved out front of Oberlin's Dale Heyen and Lenora's Loyd Schoen on the opening lap. While trying to stay with Hamilton, Heyen looped his truck with a few laps to go, handing second to Schoen.

pit gates will open at 3 p.m., the grandstands at 5 p.m., and the races will start at 7 p.m. The BST International Motor Contest Association (IMCA) modifieds will return to do battle that night. The IMCA stock cars, IMCA hobby stocks, classic modifieds, and mini-trucks will all be on hand to do battle.
