Two schools plan

medical programs

Ottawa University and Northwest Tech Vice President of Academic Affairs, Brenda Chatfield have completed the official articulation agreement between Ottawa University and Northwest Kansas Technical College.

"We have been working with Ottawa University for approximately one year to articulate a program that will allow our students in the Respiratory Therapy and Medical Assistant programs to continue seamlessly to earn a bachelor's degree if they choose," she said.

This also allows a general transfer agreement for the other remaining programs at Northwest Tech.

Brian Messer, campus executive and Associate Vice President for Online Education for Ottawa University said, "We are excited about this partnership." The articulation agreement will allow students to receive their degrees online which will be of great benefit to those students needing to work full-time upon graduation from Northwest Tech. "It gives Ottawa and Northwest Tech an opportunity to help students succeed and complement the education they have already received."

For details on the new program, call the admissions office at (800) 316-4127 or go to www.nwktc.com.

Painting class set at Logan

T.R. Mathews and Sandy Seasmone, two certified instructors of Arriba, Colo., will entertain and instruct, step by step, the "Joy of Painting with Bob Ross" on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 19 and 20, at the Hansen Museum in Logan.

The class will paint "Times Past" on Saturday and "High Mountain Home" on Sunday. Classes will run from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. both days.

This learning opportunity is brought through the Hansen Museum Continued Education Program and is offered to the public at a reduced rate.

For details, call (785) 689-4846 or go to www.hansenmuseum.org. Those participating need to bring a roll of paper towels; all other supplies are provided.
