Modern Woodmen give of their talents

Members of the Oberlin Camp of the Modern Woodmen of America have given many hours and contributions in recent weeks on projects to help others and to beautify the community.
The chapter and volunteers shopped for the Decatur County Food Pantry, then delivered food, cleaning supplies and other items as part of the organization's "Care and Share Program" to the United Church, where they stocked the shelves from items donated by the chapter. Melanie Anderson is in charge of the pantry.
Among those assisting were Doris Fringer, Jan Matheny, Betty James, Eleanor Boyles, Beth Sebaugh, Ella Betts, Sam Steinmetz, Jeanette Miller and Marie McKisson, activities coordinator for the Oberlin group.
Chapter members, along with Oberlin Teens for Christ and their leaders, Doug and Johanna Mason, family members of the late Lora Marietta, Master Gardeners Gaylord and Shirley Shields, and Good Samaritan representatives worked together on Join Hands Day, to prepare the ground and plant shrubs at the "Lora Marietta Courtyard" at the Decatur County Good Samaritan Center. Lora worked at the center throughout high school and summers during college. She was killed in an auto accident.

The area was designed by Mr. and Mrs. Shields. This special project brought youths and adults together to complete the project. The project also included Good Samaritan Administrator Janice Shobe and Resource Development Director Cindi Sloan-Sauder.
Several members and volunteers gathered at Centennial Park and the Oberlin City Park to plant an Autumn Blaze pear tree and a Chinkapine oak as lasting gifts to the community.
The project was part of the "Plant a Tree Program," a nationwide program introduced by Modern Woodmen in 2004.
The coordinator noted that its name, Modern Woodmen, honors the pioneer woodmen who cleared the forests to build homes and secure a future for their families. Today, the group offers financial services along with charitable work.
Those assisting with the plantings included Timmarie, Aubrey and Alissa Sporn, Gary Walter, Rusty Addleman, Sam Steinmetz, Eleanor Boyle, Jim Miesner, Marian Fraker, Karen Larson, Jeremy Tally, Doris Fringer and Mrs. McKisson. Also participating were city officials and council members, and members of the city Tree, Parks and Cemetery boards.
