New sexton talks to Rotary Club

Jeremy Tally, the new sexton at the Oberlin Cemetery, presented the program at the July 26 meeting of the Oberlin Rotary Club at The Gateway, talking about plans to buy a new digital directory to list those buried here.

He said the computer-based device would be installed under a protective roof. It would show the location of graves, using a digital map, plus photos and other information added by the families. The estimated cost is $20,000 to $40,000, he said.

Mr. Tally said the directory is manufactured by Windy Prairie Corp. of Lincoln, Neb. He noted that many citizens of Oberlin support the idea. The city would have to raise half the cost to begin the process, he said, with the balance due later. The directory's software updates would be free, as would be the basic death and burial listings. Information, history, art and music, as well as photos, can be added for a fee.

Some Rotary members noted that this would make a great community project for the club, which might be able to get a grant from Rotary District funds.

Darrell Landau's daughter Monica was a guest.

Corrections

The name of Gwen Fortin was inadvertently omitted from a list of volunteers in a story on a mission trip to Imperial, Neb., on Page 3A of the Wednesday, July 27, edition of The Oberlin Herald. She was among about 50 people from Oberlin who helped pack food for needy children overseas in the "Feed My Starving Children" project. The mistake was a reporter's error.
